Family legacy lives on through Allan Ross Fundamental Camp

North Georgia News sports@nganews.com

Last month marked the 17year anniversary of the untimely passing of Union County Head Basketball Coach Allan Ross.

Since then, Union County has had nine different mens basketball coaches, however, last summer, new head coach Casey Jones brought a change of culture to Panther basketball. The new coach made it clear early on that he was a Coach Ross disciple and he would model much of his coaching philosophy on the man who coached him for three years. So when Coach Ross' son Michael Ross came calling to resurrect the Allan Ross Fundamental Basketball Camp, Jones quickly jumped on board.

"It was really cool for Kevin (Hughes) and I to work with Michael in a camp that we attended and helped years ago," Coach Jones said. "Coach Ross was all about fundamentals and the apple didn't fall too far from the tree with Michael. He is all about fundamentals as well and his dad would be proud. Last week, Union County Middle School opened its doors to the Ross camp, and there was no shortage of current and former players who were eager to assist. Ross (Class of 2008) was joined by his former Panther teammate Corey Garrett - Class of 2007, current Panther Assistant Coach Kevin Hughes - Union County Class of 1998, and Jones - Union County Class of 1999. "I was fortunate enough to team up with the Union County men's basketball program to help run this camp," Michael Ross said. "The group that helped make this camp successful included members of the varsity and JV teams, as well as Coach Casey Jones and Coach Kevin Hughes. In addition to the team, Corey Garrett assisted in this camp as well as previous camps with me in the past. A big thank you to all those who helped make this a success and help teach the younger generation the fundamentals we tend to overlook in today's game."

Players from not only Union County, but Towns County and Hayesville NC took part in the three day camp that focused on passing, proper shooting form, rebounding, speed and agility, with the main priority being defense.

"During this camp we focused on the fundamentals we believe to be necessary in becoming better basketball players," Michael

The camp ran for three could see their confidence grow younger players and an afternoon session for the older players. Despite being limited to three, two hour sessions, Michael Ross talked about the growth he saw during the camp.

"Some of the highlights of this camp would have to be seeing some of the younger guys start to pick up on drills they have not been exposed to yet," Michael Ross said. "As camp went on you days with a morning session for and the bond between campers strengthen through drills and competitions. As a basketball fan, like all of the instructors, I believe we were excited to see the campers having fun and learning to play the game. We hope they take home what they have leaned and the next time we host a camp all their hard work at home is evident.'

Growing up the son and grandson of a basketball coach, Michael Ross was constantly around basketball games and basketball camps, but his dad's camp has always held a special place in his heart. Now he is hoping to create positive memories for others through the Ross Camp and his Elite Level Training camps.

This camp was very special for me because it allowed me to provide a great learning opportunity and fun experience that I was fortunate enough to experience growing up. It was definitely bittersweet but a true blessing.

"All the support from my dad's former players and members of the community in helping make this camp a reality was a blessing. We hope to make this camp an annual event and reach as many campers as possible like the camp had done in the past. It is a great way to allow the current high school players really understand a sense of community and how big of an impact they can have on the next generation of high school and middle school athletes. To see so many people who experienced the camp when my dad ran it support what we are trying to do and to be involved with all the planning that goes into a camp such as this is amazing. "For me personally, this was a great way to honor the legacy my dad left behind of not only basketball, but also helping others and strengthening a sense of community that is vital to the success of many sports team up here in north Georgia."

Finally, Michael Ross thanked all of the instructors who volunteered their time and his family and the community for

"I would like to thank all the instructors, Coach Jones, Coach Hughes, Corey Garrett and the members of the men's basketball program that helped make this camp as successful after a 17 year absence," Michael Ross said. "I would like to thank my family for their support in all the behind the scenes aspects that go into running a camp like this. I would also like to thank my dad's former players, my former teammates and members of the community who offered to help and made their support clear. A big thank you to all the campers for working so hard and setting the tone for the future Allan Ross Fundamental Camps we plan to host."

Elite Level Training will be hosting two camps towards the end of July. One will be held in Hayesville, NC and the other will be held at the Towns County Recreation Department. For information regarding these camps email Michael Ross at rossma24@yahoo.com or call 706-897-4581.
